

NOMINATION OUTSTANDING CLASSIFIED PROFESSIONAL : CAROL EDSON

She's on the campus Student Grievance Committee (I'm not sure that that is the name of it, but if a student makes an assertion and it has to go before a committee, this is the committee, I believe)

She was on the Campus Web Committee when Elizabeth Noyes was here

She maintains great relationships with both M&O and custodial staff.

She has great relationships with both the full-time and adjunct science faculty.

She takes classes, herself, because she believes in education and what this campus has to offer. She has taken numerous PE classes, but she has also taken Geology, Astronomy, Math, etc, just because she is interested in learning and continuous education.

She is excellent at her job,

she works with all of the instructors,

takes care of the ordering, takes care of working with IT to keep the equipment operational for classes, maintains the entire Geology & Oceanography sets of thousands and thousands and thousands of specimens and samples, before, during and after the students use them each week helps the physics, astronomy and engineering students and their lab tech and instructors when she can,

She has voluntarily come in in the evening to help the evening lab, when it was beyond her scheduled hours, but an immeasurable help to the evening instructor

She has volunteered to help with Graduation many, many times.

She volunteered to help with EXPO many times

She has helped with the Majors Faire many times

She has worked on accreditation reports, served on numerous committees (Tech, Scholarship, Active Shooter Committee, numerous hiring committees, etc), read scholarship applications over her Spring Break, etc.

She participates collegially in things like the Friday Badminton/Basketball LPC group, the various library contests, etc.

She maintains great relationships with just about everyone on campus.

She believes in "Students First" - and she has walked many a student over to the campus health center after they have confided something to her that the health center may be able to help with. She has helped students work with the ASLPC to get textbooks and such.

She spends time with students with special needs, particularly the Returning Veterans here on campus.
