Course Description:

Introduction to research techniques in a college library: specialized research databases. Learn use of subject databases that emphasize full-text materials on discipline-specific topics, such as literature, pro-con issues, and gender topics. Practice MLA /APA citation formats for articles from these databases. No extra-credit work will be accepted. No make-up days will be allowed.

Course Requirements and Student Responsibilities:

1. Attendance is mandatory.
2. Students must be willing to do independent and group projects.
3. Students will complete and turn in hands-on exercises at the end of each class.
4. You will receive credit for your work after you have successfully completed the hands-on exercises, the final project, and met with a librarian for two hours.

Course Objectives:

Upon completion of this course students should be able to:

1. Research a given topic and select appropriate articles.
2. Search electronic print resources (research databases) to find periodical articles in journals, newspapers or magazines as well as other research materials.
3. Formulate effective research strategies for locating magazine, journal, and newspaper articles as well as other research materials on a selected topic in LPC discipline-specific databases.
4. Distinguish between popular magazines and peer-reviewed journals.
5. Document sources by creating a works-cited list based on APA and MLA guidelines in NoodleBib, a citation-generating tool. Citing your sources helps you avoid plagiarism by giving credit to the sources you used. Read the LPC Academic Honesty Statement for more detail
