

Format for Drafting a Constitution

The Constitution of club contains the fundamental principles which govern its operation and establishes the specific rules of guidance by which the group is to function. All, except the most informal groups, should have their basic structure and methods of operation in writing.

Why have a Constitution?

By definition a club is a "body of persons organized for some specific purpose, as a club, union, or society." The process of writing a constitution will clarify your purpose, delineate your basic structure, and provide the cornerstone for building an effective group. It will allow members and potential members to have a better understanding of what the club is all about and how it functions. It will provide a structure to aid future leaders of your club to ensure that the group continues on a sound course. If you keep in mind the value of having a written document that clearly describes the framework of your club, the drafting of the constitution will be a much easier and more rewarding experience.

What should be covered by a Constitution?

The following pages are an outline of the standard information to be included in a constitution to be consistent with college guidelines. (Please note: All items in bold type must be included.) Other articles and sections are included to provide some examples of sound club practices. However, remember the constitution is for your club. It's important to think through what is written so it reflects your club's purposes and needs as well as includes college requirements. The prime objective is to draft a document that covers these topics in a clear and concise manner. If you have any questions you should consult with your faculty/staff advisor or any professional staff person in the Student Life Office.

What do we do after we draft the Constitution and we become a recognized club?

Remember the reason for having a constitution is that it articulates the purpose of your club and spells out the procedure to be followed for its orderly function. Once your club develops this constitution, review it at least once an academic year. The needs of a club will change and it's important that this constitution reflect the current state of affairs. Of course it is in the best interest of your club to keep a copy of any amendments in the Student Life Office.

Make sure every member of your club has a copy of this constitution. This will help members stay informed about the opportunities for participation and procedures they need to follow to be an active contributing member.

A thorough study of your club's constitution and bylaws should be a part of an officer orientation and officer transition.
