

Equity Praxis aka Tools over Theory aka Skills Building

Hello All,

In lieu of our regularly scheduled Student Equity and Achievement (SEA) committee meeting, we will be having a workshop with two incredibly dynamic equity work practitioners: Rahkii Holman and Janet Stickmon. In this workshop, attendees will be introduced to tools related to dealing with racial battle fatigue, equity and group dynamics, avoiding burnout, and other equity related concerns affecting us, and our students. .

What: Equity Skills Building Training

When: April 18th, 12p-3p (food will be provided)

Where: LPC Cafeteria (1600 Building)

Rahkii Holman's beginnings in social justice and equity work stem from his involvement with socially conscious Hip-Hop music. He is a recognized expert in restorative justice practices, institutional equity best practices, and using art to facilitate cross-cultural understanding. You can find out more about Rahkii here: <https://www.atunsejusticeleague.org/our-facilitators>

Janet Stickmon, ethnic studies professor at Napa Valley College, is an author, coach, corporate consultant, and workshop facilitator in the areas of racial battle fatigue, abundance mindset, health and wellness for educators, and Life Visioning Mastery (Bernard Beckwith model). You can find out more about Janet here: <https://www.janetstickmon.com>